Your Capita-MiRo Team Report

This report has been built using the data from all the individual MiRo Behavioural Mode Assessments, belonging to the members of your team. It is intended to give you some indication of the expected behaviours and attitudes that might be at work within the group. In order to do this we have looked at a number of variables. Firstly the Leading and Supporting Modes at work within the team have been considered. The report will tell you where the balance of behaviours lies and will offer some interpretation of this result giving you some idea of the strengths and potential weak points within the team's make up. Within those Behavioural Modes are also the perceptual and judgement biases present among this particular group of people. This report goes one step further than the individual reports by looking at the make up of the team as it relates to these factors too. This further enables us to look at the possible dynamic tensions within the team, which may be the cause of inertia and conflict or creativity and energy within the team.

How to use this report

As with any psychometric the MiRo Team Report can never be a substitute for direct knowledge of a team, which is why a qualified consultant practitioner always administers it. It can however augment that first hand understanding and the combination of the two can form a powerful resource, which can be deployed to help in many organisational undertakings such as:
